The text below the chart explains that the chart compares different sources of income for each monthly forecast and provides instructions on how to switch between different views of the data.

The screenshot shows the SkillSurfer interface for a lesson on "Momentum, Impulse and Collisions". The lesson content includes:

- Momentum of a particle: The momentum p of a particle is a vector quantity equal to the product of the particle's mass m and velocity v . Newton's second law says that the net force on a particle is equal to the rate of change of the particle's momentum.
- Impulse and momentum: If a constant net force ΣF acts on a particle for a time interval Δt from t_1 to t_2 , the impulse J of the net force is the product of the net force and the time interval. If ΣF varies with time, J is the integral of the net force over the time interval. In any case, the change in a particle's momentum during a time interval equals the impulse of the net force that acted on the particle during that interval. The momentum of a particle equals the impulse that accelerated it from rest to its present speed.

Equations shown include $\Sigma F = m \frac{dv}{dt}$ and $J = \int \Sigma F dt$.

View online lesson videos or read lesson notes to learn a new skill or review a previously learned concept. SkillSurfer learning content is always available, so feel free to return and continue where you left off.
